

ALCOHOL I

Now, my dear readers, I would like to tell you the story of how alcohol affected the Monster at the Zombie's Halloween Party...

Midnight: Monster's first drink.

At this stage the Monster looks fairly normal... well, normal by his standards, ha ha!

12.30: Monster's third drink.

Alcohol dries the germ-killing spit and causes smelly breath.

Red face as alcohol widens blood vessels under the skin.

1 a.m.: Monster's fourth drink.

I ROAM GRAVEYARDS, I DIG UP BODIES, I SCARE VICARS... IT'S A REAL SCREAM...

YAWN!

Alcohol weakens hearing — making the Monster talk louder. The befuddled Monster thinks he's being funny when he's actually being boring.

2 a.m.: Monster's sixth drink.

I GESH THESE NO RESHT FOR, THE WICK -HIC -RED...

Alcohol confuses the brain's speech systems.

Clumsy actions due to alcohol affecting the brain's movement controls.

- Wider blood vessels mean more blood goes to the kidneys. The kidney's make more pee.

ER — S'OUSE ME!

Alcohol upsets the stomach causing vomiting.

The morning after the night before...

I WANT TO DIE! YOU'LL HAVE TO COME ALIVE FIRST!

Alcohol dries out the body causing headache, tiredness and sickness. This stage is known as the hangover.
