A giant's tale

I'm a big fellow, burly and tall
I can look a bit scary but I'm not mean at all

I live in a kingdom, in the clouds up above
In a bright golden castle that I simply love

I live with my wife, so happy are we
Two gentle giants – my missls and me

Now I'll tell you a story, about one special day
When a strange-looking plant came growing our way

A beanstalk it was, grew up overnight
It must've been magic to reach such a height

Up the great plant, a boy did appear
At first he seemed brave, not one ounce of fear

He wandered about and took in the view
Of our giant home – exciting and new

But when the lad's eyes finally settled on me
The poor mite looked terrified and started to flee

I think he was thinking I'd scoff him for lunch
His bones I would grind, his limbs I would crunch

But I don't eat people, they're just not for me
I much prefer a vegetarian tea

But back down the beanstalk, the little lad fled
Frightened I'd eat him, be he alive or dead

And though I went after him, to say I was nice
He chopped down the beanstalk with an axe-like device

Lucky for me, my wife grabbed my arm
And pulled me back up to save me from harm

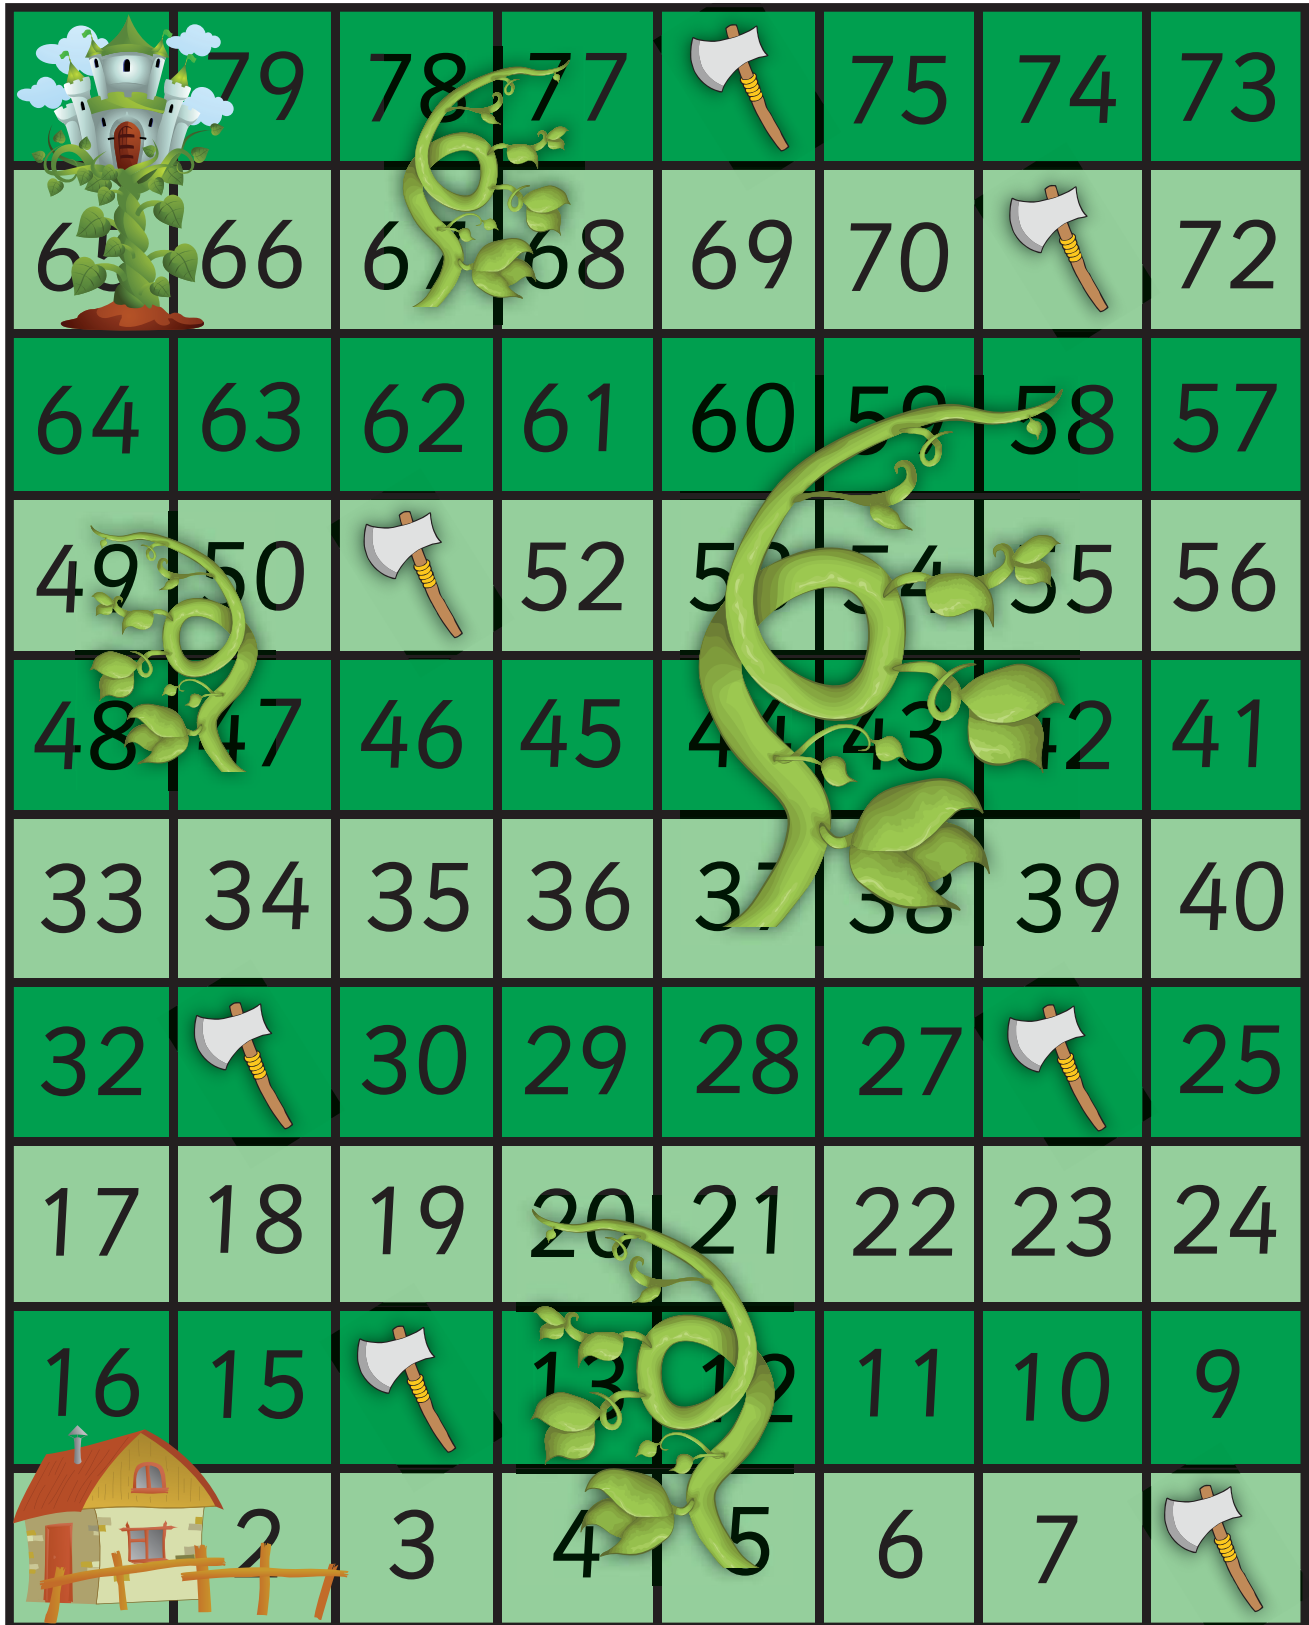

Alas that's the end of my beanstalk story
Thankfully it didn't end gruesome or gory

You see I much prefer a quiet kind of life
Reading books, eating veggies and growing old with my wife.
