Brown bears have thick fur, even when it is far away.

Brown bears live in forests,
near rivers and in wide
grassy spaces,
because of the grey tips
of their fur.

Sometimes, brown bears
are called “grizzly bears”
where they can hunt
and find food.

They can smell food
so they can follow their mother outside.

In spring, the cubs
are bigger,
because they live in
places that are very cold in winter.
