2. Underline the topic sentence in this paragraph.

Pollution is also caused by ships losing their cargo at sea. During accidents or storms, things such as plastic, poisonous chemicals, oil and food can be swept into the water. In an emergency, ships sometimes release the fuel they have on board, in order to prevent fires. All of these substances can pollute both underwater environments and nearby shores, causing long-lasting damage.

3. Write a topic sentence of your own for a new paragraph that could come next.
